Credentials: Cameron D'arcy

As a director of 6box, I bring with me my passion of acting as a conduit between the technology industry and everyday business owners to achieve the best result possible. My interest in studying various industries has played a key role in addressing my client's needs and desires in gaining a competitive edge in the current and future markets for their business. I have focused on educating and empowering the client to make the most informed decisions possible that help achieve client's expectation and requirements.

My previous work history has been predominantly working in the Australian Public Service. I've been responsible for major website redevelopments, this has included the Prime Minister of Australia's website and the Child Support Agency website. These projects and more have really utilised and extended my project management, stakeholder engagement, and website development skills. My greatest enjoyment is to provide avenues that my client's did not necessarily know was an option.
